This is Liz Richardson, the band and orchestra director at Falcon Creek. The instrumental music programs at FCMS are growing and we cannot wait to get more new students in next year's 6th grade ensembles!

Instrumental music ensembles are a unique option for students to build relationships, learn new skills, engage in an activity they will continue into high school, and make new friends.

Band/Orchestra students choose from a variety of instruments to learn, engage in several performance opportunities throughout the year, and learn to play music in many different styles. The students learn how to read music, explore music from cultures around the world, connect to the environment around them through music, compose their own pieces, and work together as an ensemble to communicate to the audience through music performances.

FCMS students either came to your student's elementary school and performed for them virtually or in person so that your students could see and meet some of the fantastic musicians currently at Falcon Creek. The students also created the recruitment video and have recorded some performances for your students. I have put together a website page with information about different instrument options and more about our music program here at Falcon Creek.

I look forward to welcoming new parents and students into Falcon Creek's instrumental music family, and am happy to answer any questions you or your student may have!

Ms. Liz Richardson
